

ABOUT US

Generations United's National Center on Grandfamilies is a leading voice for families headed by grandparents, other relatives, and close family friends. The Center's work is guided by GRAND Voices, a national network of grandfamily caregiver advocates. Through the Center, Generations United leads an advisory group of caregivers and organizations that set the national agenda to advance public interest in support of these families. As trusted voices on Capitol Hill, center staff conduct federal advocacy and support grandfamilies to elevate their own voices to improve policies and practices that impact them. The Center provides training and tailored assistance to advocates and practitioners and raises awareness about the strengths and needs of grandfamilies through media outreach, weekly communications, and awareness-raising events. The Center releases an annual State of Grandfamilies report and a broad range of guides, fact sheets and tools for grandfamilies, which cover issues from educational and health care access to financial and legal supports. Resources can be found at gu.org and grandfamilies.org.

Generations United is also home to the Grandfamilies & Kinship Support Network, the first-ever national technical assistance center for those who serve grandfamilies and kinship families supported through a cooperative agreement with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' Administration for Community Living. KEY FUNCTIONS

1 Sets Collective Agenda

Through the convening of national symposiums of experts in the grandfamilies field, the Center has led efforts to set a united agenda and coordinate the collective work of national leaders working on behalf of grandfamilies.

2 Elevates Grandfamily Voices

Generations United's GRAND Voices is a national group of grandparents and other relatives raising children, with representation from virtually every state and many tribes, that guides the work of the Center. We support, train and engage GRAND Voices and young people raised in grandfamilies to inform policies and practice, address service gaps, and advocate for better outcomes.

3 Advocates for Policy Change

As a trusted voice on Capitol Hill, the Center advocates for improved policies for grandfamilies including through child welfare reform, specialized federal housing assistance, and the inclusion of grandfamilies in the Older Americans Act.

4 Promotes Positive Messaging

Generations United's is the go-to group for media seeking expert commentary on grandfamilies. Our awareness raising efforts have resulted in coverage in the Wall Street Journal, Washington Post, New York Times, NPR and ABC News. Our communications efforts led to reframing the way we talk about families, leading with strengths and moving the term grandfamilies into the country's vernacular.

5 Shares Key Research, Information & Resources: State of Grandfamilies Report

Through our annual State of Grandfamilies report, fact sheets, policy summaries and toolkits, Generations United shares complex information in clear and consumable ways to help policy makers, practitioners, educators, community leaders, the media and grandfamilies.
